Premieres Music Video for “My Girlfriend’s Girlfriend”

Exclusively with Billboard

April 10, 2018 - Black Satellite are premiering the dark and intense music video for “My Girlfriend’s Girlfriend” exclusively with Billboard today. The rock-duo are releasing the track as a tribute to one of their influences, Type O Negative, in remembrance of Peter Steele on the anniversary of his death. Featuring drumming sensation Casey Cooper, the video showcases high-energy performances and an alluring aesthetic. Fans can head to Billboard.com for an exclusive interview with the band. The project will be available for streaming and purchase across all platforms on April 14th.

On the track, singer Larissa Vale shares “We wanted to honor the legacy of Type O Negative by paying tribute to Peter Steele on the anniversary of his death. It was important to us to maintain the essence of the original song but also make sure is sounded uniquely our own. Our hope is that our cover offers other Type O fans like us an opportunity to come together in remembering Peter."

Called a "rock band beyond definition" by idobi Radio, Black Satellite have been crafting mind-blowing alt-rock for over six years. Comprised of Larissa Vale (vocals) and Kyle Hawken (guitar), the duo came together in their hometown of State College, Pennsylvania and quickly formed a loyal bond that created the foundation for Black Satellite.

Black Satellite was named one of Alternative Press' "12 Bands You Need to Know" sharing that "Frontwoman Larissa Vale offers an aggressively elegant vocal range that pairs perfectly over Kyle Hawken's melodic guitar riffs and instrumental work. Each song from Endless effortlessly shows off the duo's provocative sound and captivating alt-rock essence." Additional support from the band from outlets like Billboard, Loudwire, New Noise Magazine, Alternative Press and more have continued to validate and solidify Black Satellite's place in the rock world.

Mastered by Ted Jensen (Muse, Marilyn Manson, Deftones), the band's debut album Endless paints an almost cinematic landscape, with each track revealing a new facet of the duo's style and complexity. Pairing influences ranging from Alice in Chains to Gojira with personal, emotional experiences and stories, Black Satellite have crafted a unified body of work that showcases their undeniable range. Vale remarked that with Endless, "We not only confronted our fears head-on, but were completely immersed in them."
